THE MARSHALS ARE COMRADES.

Brinton, of Illinois, and Hawkins, of Indiana, Battled Together for Jobs.

W. F. Brinton, United States marshal for the Southern district of Illinois, came here, yesterday, after Jefferson Majors, the negro with a penchant for impersonating government inspectors and who will live at the expense of the United States government in an Illinois jail for several months to come. Mr. Brinton resided in this city for twelve years as representative of the Moline Wagon Company's interests. He boarded at the Grand Hotel and says he knows this State quite as well as his own. He has long been treasurer of the Illinois his residence at Tuscola. His was one of the last Illinois appointments of any importance that President Cleveland made. The fact that the latter rested after appointing Mr. Brinton marshal was the ubject of a jest the other night at the Leland Hotel, in Springfield, the Secretary of State of Illinois insisting that it was such a bad one that Cleveland hesitated to try his hand on any more Illinois material. Mr. Brinton tells this on himself, so it is

He and Marshal Hawkins are great friends and were together in Washington fighting their appointments through. Brinton says if Hawkins ever wants a man in Illinois he will have to come after him in person as no prisoner will be turned over to an Indiana deputy. He promises the Hoosier marshal a great time at the Illinois capital.

A Team Stolen from Attica. James Hathaway, of Attica, Ind., telegraphed to Superintendent Powell last night that his team of black and grey ponies and a top buggy had been stolen yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The number 848 is

W. W. Thornton Shows What Democracy Has Done for Indiana.

An Able Address Before an Enthusiastic Meeting of the Fifteenth Ward League Club.

There was an enthusiastic meeting of the Fifteenth-ward Lincoln League Club at Hoffman's Hall, on South Meridian street, last night. The club has been organized with a large membership in the very stronghold of the Democracy of Indianapolis. W. W. Thornton was the principal speaker of the evening, and he made a very interesting address on "The Democracy of Indiana." He said, in part:

"There are several causes why the State of Indiana has been so effectually held in the clutches of the Democratic party, but the most potent one is due to the direction of emigration toward this State. The northern part of the State was peopled either by New Englanders and New Yorkor their descendants, while the Southern part of the State was settled by emigrants from the Virginias and the Carolinas, Tennessee and Kentucky. Thus in the early days of the State more than three-fourths of the population lay south of the National road, and consequently the State went Democratic year after year. After the war of the rebellion the tide of emigration again set in from the Southern States, and it is estimated that thirty thousand people from the States lately in rebellion settled within the borders of Indiana. After the war emigration-from this State also began, spreading to Minnesota and other Western States. These enterprising and pushing people who left were almost entirely Republican. Many of the soldiers went West to obtain the advantages their war services gave them in claiming land. These Western States have whelmingly Republican. Thus it is the Republican party of this State has always had to make a bitter fight to gain a vic-

party of this State for good have been | Every man likely to be of benefit in the great, but the party has failed in the opportunities. On three sides of us are great | any sum too dear while the little girl was States, all Republican, having within their borders four cities greater than any possessed by us, having greater population, greater wealth, greater manufactories and greater institutions of learning. Even the Bourbon State of Kentucky has a metropolis that is tall enough to throw a shadow on Indiana's capital. Indiana has greater natural resources than any of the neighboring States, but her career under De-mocracy has falled to win for her the place to which she is entitled. Indiana has been cursed with Democracy

"What have our Democratic members in Congress done for us? Have they secured for us any public buildings? Have they secured for within our borders any of the government public works? Every national public building in the State for the use of the Postoffice Department has been built with money appropriated by Republican Congresses. The arsenal at Indianapolis, the public works at Jeffersonville and the Soldiers' Home at Marion were secured by the efforts of energetic Republicans in Congress. It was through the efforts of Republican Representatives that over $700,000 was returned to the treasury of the State and the bonds of the State prevented from going to protest. No inhabitant of this State has ever held, at the request of a Democratic President, a Cabinet office. None of the four great missions abroad has ever been filled by an Indiana appointee of a Democratic President. Thomas Hendricks, one of the great men of his party, was turned down when he was a candidate for the presidential nomination. Although put on the tail of the ticket, the State cast its vote for Democracy. Isaac P. Gray was also turned down, and the prize he coveted given to Ohio. The Democracy of the Nation has always turned down the Indiana Representatives."

Mr. Thornton then showed bow Gray had been snubbed by Cleveland, who, evidently had but little respect for the Democracy of the State. Gray was left out of the Cabinet and given a little mission down i THE STATE DEMOCRACY. "The Democratic party of this State has been, and is to-day, without spirit, without pluck to resent any affront. Snubbed and spurned by the national Democracy, it trails along in the rear, like the historical mule in the race with its mane all knotted and its tail full of cockle burrs. Contrast the treatment of the Republicans of the Nation with that of the Democrats by the national Democracy." The speaker referred to the election of William Henry Harrison to the presidency, the appointment of ex-Governor White as minister to Berlin under Abraham Lincoln, the choice of Caleb B. Smith and John T sher as Secretaries of the Interior, Hugh McCulloch as Secretary of the Treasury, Schuyler Colfax as Vice President, James Tyner as Postmaster-general, Richard Thompson as Secretary of the Navy, Gen. Lew Wallace as minister to Turkey, John C. New Treasurer of the United States, and, finally, the election of Benja-min Harrison as President of the United States, with other citizens of the State "Does it pay best in Indiana to be a Re-publican or a Democrat?" asked Mr. Thornton. "Let us turn to the affairs of this State. For twenty years the Democratic party has had continuous possession of benevolent institutions, secured by the most vicious legislation ever put on the statute books. When Governor Porter, a Repub-llean, was elected, the Democratic Legislature changed the law so as to keep the appointments within their grasp. When Gray was elected the appointing power was again returned to the Governor. These great institutions are still filled with henchmen who hold their positions because they control a few votes. As a result of this vicious legislation, the unfortunate beings who have been confined in our chief insane asylum have been fed on maggoty butter, moldy bread, unwholesome meat and rotten vegetables furnished by Democratic contractors. It was not until Republicans were placed upon the Supreme Bench tribunal began to gain favor with the legal profession outside of the State. "If there is any one branch of the government which gives character to the State it is the Legislature. Limited alone by the Constitution, it is absolute, all powerful. From the foundation of the State until 1861 the Democratic party had almost continuous control of both branches of the Legislature. From 1873 to the present date, with the exception of 1881, the Democratic party has had control of the Senate, absolutely controlling all legislation, and have had control of the lower house with the exception of three years. Cities that were Republican have been deprived of the appointment and control over many of their officers, while cities that were Democratic have been left in full control of all their powers. Laws have been enacted to keep acompetent men in high offices, and who have disgraced the positions they filled by drunken revelry and debauchery." Rev. Mr. Sawyer made a short talk. William Dean and John McGregor were also on the programme of the evening.

Locked Harden in the Coop. John Harden, a young boy, was arrested vesterday by patrolmen Pope and Ward for stealing pigeons from the residence of Ben Wambaugh, No. 335 North Mississippi street. Mrs. Wambaugh, on looking out of window at about 4 'o'clock, discovered Harden in the coop. She then informed her husband, who quietly made his way to the coop and succeeded in locking the offender within. He then summoned the officers, who made the arrest. Mr. Wambaugh has lost over one hundred pigeons within the last few weeks.

Took Mrs. Wallace's Child Away. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. M. J. Wallace, residing at No. 22 Prospect street, called at the police station and complained that two men calling themselves detectives had forcibly taken her three-year-old daughter from the house late Wednesday evening. On investigation it was found that the child was in the custody of the Board of Children's Guardians, but on whose authority the child was held is not known. Mrs. Wallace is at a loss to know why her child was thus taken away from her, and will take steps to recover it.

West Newton Ghouls Fired On. The parties who attempted to rob a grave at West Newton at midnight on Wednesday are still unknown. It the party were four men, who had brought their tools in a spring wagon. One of the four remained in the wagon, another was stationed at the entrance of the cemetery ant's on payments.

HAS HURT THE STATE to give warning in case of discovery, while the remaining two went directly to the grave of Mrs. William Sprague, who died a few days ago, and immediately commenced their work. They had just succeeded in getting half of the dirt out of the grave when they were discovered by some men who were just returning from a coon hunt. Seeing the strangers, they at once surmised their intentions, and opened fire on them with shotguns. The grave robbers at once fled to their wagon and drove rapidly away in the direction of this city. The men who fired the shots are confident that the shots took effect, though no traces of blood could be found. The men dld not pursue the invaders, but returned to the grave and made sure that the body had not been removed.

FOUND IN A HOSPITAL

Francis Murphy's Grandchild Located After a Long Search.

Abducted by Its Father-Detectives Find It After Hunting for Nine Weeks in Several Cities.

The grandchild of Francis Murphy, the temperance apostle, that was abducted by its father in the East several months ago has been recovered and is now with Mr. Murphy's family at Woodruff. The child's mother, Mrs. Josephine Holmes, is also with Mr. Murphy. The little girl is three years old, very pretty, with light brown hair, and is unusually bright for her age. It took a very long time to trace the child, and for nine weeks the mother was almost frantic, worrying about the little girl, whom she was afraid was lost to her for all time. The child was stolen in Brooklyn one day by its father, a man who, in his young manhood, gave much promise, but who afterwards was cruel to his wife and displayed other bad habits. The mother did not know that the father had any design to steal the child, and the sudden abduction made the blow all the more severe. The police of Brooklyn and until the last few years been almost over- | New York were promptly notified, and a description of the husband furnished to the police of several cities. Private detectives were employed and a great deal of money spent in this way, so great was the "The opportunities of the Democratic | concern of the mother and her relatives. search was hired. The family did not hold

Finally, after over two months' of searching and inquiries in several cities, a detective heard of a little girl that had been taken to a hospital in Philadelphia by a man answering the description of Holmes, The clew was followed up and the child recovered. The happy mother immediately set out for the home of her father in this city, so as to be secure with her daughter. She herself had visited not a few cities in the hunt for the little one. The two will now make their home with the big-hearted man who has done so much to make others

Mrs. Holmes was married four years ago at Pittsburg, the former home of the Murphys. Her husband was the proprietor of the Monongahela House, and was at that time considered a young man of good habits and an admirable man for Miss Murphy. Domestic infelicity followed, however, after a few months of married life A daughter was born to them within a year. The man and wife afterwards separated, and Mrs. Holmes went to live with a married sister in Brooklyn, where the child was abducted. No cause is assigned for the husband's action, unless it was be-cause he knew that his wife would be very unhappy if the child was taken from

per of Bringing Him Here.

William Orrell, who has been a patient at the Central Hospital for the Insane for three years, died yesterday from a short illness of inflammatory rheumatism. Orrell was sixty-eight years of age, and he has been insane for forty-eight years. He at one time lived in Jennings county, and on being declared of unsound mind was confined in an apartment of the Jennings county courthouse up to within three years ago. Then, for some unknown reason, it was decided to remove him to the insane asylum west of the city. He was considered to be a very dangerous person, and when the time came for his removal he was placed in a large merchandise box, securely nailed within, and was then brought to this city. The men who had him in custody thought him too dangerous to bring here by rail, so they placed the box containing Orrell in a spring wagon and drove the entire distance from Jennings county to this city within two days. On arriving at the hospital the officers in charge there did not know of the nature of the contents of the box. When they opened the box they were greatly as-tonished, but the explanations that fol-lowed were deemed sufficient. The box was kept for a long time afterward and was exhibited as a curiosity. Orrel was confined in ward "Q." a ward set aside for patients who are considered dangerous. During his confinement in the ward Orrell at no time exhibited great violence, however. His illness came on him three days before his death. The authorities are awaiting to hear from his friends in Jennings county before any disposal of his body is made. HER HUSBAND WAS DEAD.

Mrs. Pryor's Telephone Message-The

Mrs. E. E. Pryor called at the police station yesterday morning and asked Sergeant Dawson to telephone to the insane hospital to inquire as to the condition of her husband, who has been confined there of the State that the decisions of that high | for several weeks. The sergeant did so, and on receiving the answer, he turned to the woman and shook his head. The woman at once knew the answer and sobbed hysterically. Her husband had died in the early morning. Last night the police were notified that she had not been seen by her friends since her presence at the police station. Her friends fear that her grief has affected her mind. The remains of her husband were removed to Spencer yesterday afternoon, where they will be interred.

Mrs. Annie Tillson's Misfortune. Annie M. Tillson, aged forty, was declared of unsound mind by a jury in the Superior Court yesterday. The victim is mentally unbalanced, and the legal step was taken simply to secure a guardian for her. Ten years ago she was a prominent teacher in the city schools, but resigned her. her position to take up charity work. Her husband died several years ago. She was employed in the capacity of a "visitor" by one of the charity associations. Two years ago she received notice that her resignation was desired, and she at once began to suffer from melancholia. She has an interest in a piece of residence property on Talbott avenue, where she lives. Mrs. Tillson is yet an intelligent woman. Her atfliction lies solely in the fact that she conform some duty, and has a morbid fear of Brown appointed Frank Buchanan, of the

SHE WAS HYPNOTIZED

Claim of the Elkhart Heiress Who Eloped with an Adventurer.

Gov. Matthews Issues a Requisition for Return of H. Ackley Sackett from Topeka, Kan.

At 7 o'clock last night Governor Matthews issued a requisition on the Governor of the State of Kansas. The document was placed in the hands of Sheriff Crull, of Elkhart county, and will, if honored, entitle him to the possession of H. Ackley Sackett, adventurer and alleged hypnotist, who is under arrest at Topeka. The papers were made out at the office of the Secretary of State last night. The officer shoved them into his satchel and snapped the lock. "I am off on a race against time and those Chicago detectivés," he sang out, as he left the Statehouse and hastened toward the Union Station. The prisoner whom he expects to take back to Elkhart in a few days is one of the shredwest adventurers in the country, and is wanted at Elkhart for a particularly bright demonstration of

The specific charge against Sackett is fornication, although it is thought that he can be held responsible for other acts of a criminal nature. For two weeks the daily papers have been full of accounts of the sensational elopement of Sackett with Florence Davenport, the Elkhart heiress, who, it is now claimed, was under a hypnotic influence during her travels with the man. Sackett left Elkhart during the early part of last week and was joined at LaPorte by Miss Davenport two days later. They were located at Topeka, Kan., the first of this week, where Sackett was arrested on the charge of adultery. The operations of the prisoner for two months previous to his arrest were exceedingly rapid. He turned up in Elkhart about two months ago in company with a young woman whom he introduced as his wife. Sackett was an artist. He secured quarters in one of the leading business houses of Elkhart, and created something of a stir by making fine silhouette pictures, which he fashioned with perfect ease. He wore fashionable attire, was good looking, and had a bold, fascinating manner that made him the talk of the

"Among those who grew interested in Sackett's dashing ways and his novel art was Miss Frances Davenport, an orphan and an heiress. Miss Davenport is twenty-three years old, a plump, pretty little blonde, and has in her own right a fortune of $40,000. She was prominent in society and belonged to one of the best families in the town. Her parents are both dead, and the little lady ruled the household of the pet and pride of the home. Although Miss Davenport spent a great deal of her time in the establishment where Sackett displayed his art, her name was not coupled with that of the artist by the gossips, and her conduct was not called in question. When Sackett and his alleged wife left Elkhart they went to South Bend, where they remained a few days. In the Davenport home the name of Sackett was not heard, and apparently he had passed out of the mind of the youngest daughter. ELOPED WITH SACKETT.

Last Thursday the young lady disappeared mysteriously, and Elkhart society circles were stirred by a mighty sensation. For twenty-four hours it was not known where the girl had gone. Her uncle, who is president of the First National Bank of Elkhart, began at once to seek for information regarding her, and was not long in learning that she had gone astray. Reports from LaPorte, one of the neighboring towns, revealed information of the missing Sackett, who appeared a day or two before her arrival. He had been heard to remark that he was "solid with a forty-thousand-dollar heiress," and this fact, coupled with the absence of Miss Davenport, convinced the relatives of the wayward girl that the couple had fled together. The family were in despair, and determined to pursue the couple. Until the first of this week nothing was heard of them. dent of the Elkhart Bank. It was from the cashler of a Topeka, Kan., bank, and asked as to the credit of Frances Davenport. The Elkhart banker at once recog-nized the significance of the message, and wired the Topeka bank officials the story of his niece's fight. Instructions were also sent to arrest Hackett, and the following the sister and an aunt of the erring

girl hurried on to Topeka. There they were put into possession of a strange SAID SHE WAS HYPNOTIZED. The young woman asserted that what she had done was through no fault of her own. She was powerless to help herself. She charged that Sackett was the possessor of a strange influence, which she described as hypnotism, and which she said he had exerted over her. She claimed that from the of her actions. The aunt and sister rethen went back to Elkhare, arriving there yesterday. They learned that when Sackett and the girl reached Topeka they were short of funds, and Miss Davenport suggested that they go to one of the banks and secure a draft on the Elkhart bank. The plan was adopted, and the cashier, without a knowledge of the true facts, wired the Elkhart bank simply as a matter of precaution. It is understood that Sackett left his alleged wife at South Bend without money and with naught to console her but a pet dog. The family of Miss Davenport have decided to prosecute Sackett on the fornication charge, the maximum term of imprisonment for which in this State is six months and a fine of $500. The necessary steps for the prosecution were made in the Circuit Court at Elkhart yesterday. Sackett is also wanted in Chicago. It is alleged that he was formerly employed by a bicycle firm in that city and embezzled an extensive sum of money, He has a wife and two children living in Washington, D. C. He left his family abruptly a year ago. The prosecuting attor-Elkhart county is preparing to introduce the charge of an undue influence through the medium of hypnotism, and it is the belief of the family that Miss Davenport's statement in this particular is true. Sackett is thirty-two years old, and has traveled all over the country making slihouettes and giving sleight-of-hand per-
